As to the emancipation of Cuba to her country, we are distinctly in favor of the measure wheresoever it can be accomplished—if on fair and honorable terms, and never before. To the north, and especially to Maine the annexation of Cuba would be of the greatest commercial importance. To the south it might give additional political weight, but would, at the same time, introduce a successful rival in the markets for her great staples. The country would, however, on the whole, gain much, and the cause of freedom more, by the measure. Slavery would lose nothing, but on the contrary be largely benefitted therefrom, as would the whole commercial world.

The Age, from which the above is copied, is in favor of the annexation of Cuba upon fair and honorable terms, and, as of early inference, although it should come by cession, Union as a slave State, with proslavery Senators and Representatives opposed in part on a chattel basis—for Negroes, "to the south it may give additional political weight," which its annexation would not give unless it gave them with slavery. So the Age, upon its own declaration, is in favor of adding to the number of slave States, and increasing the area, power and influence of slavery in the Union. Not satisfied with the support of the Missouri Compromise, and the recent exhibition of the designs of the south to extend down to slavery all the unoccupied territory of the United States, it goes further, and in its love for "the cause of humanity and freedom" would, by the acquisition of Cuba, make certain and perpetual the supremacy of the "system of all villainies" in the Republic. And if a force of servility can further "Straight Whigs" you must act with the Age party or against it. How like you the interlocutors to which you are invited?

CALLING ON BRITISH JOHN AN HEIR.—The London Times says that England would be very glad to enlist a legion of 10,000 men or more in this country for service in the Crimea if it can be done consistently with our laws—and adds: "If the American can show us the way to take Sebastopol, we should be quite ready to learn, and to give them a very excellent fee for the lesson." Doubtless you would; but the fact is, you have got things into a terrible confusion by your hesitation and meanderings, that even Brother Jonathan would not have undertake to get you out of it well honor. He might, at the commencement, have taken the job by contract to reduce Sebastopol, and had it completed in about six weeks, but now he has to talk about it slow.

FARMERS SHOULD PLANT FRUIT.—It has become settled that there is a real scarcity of bread stuffs in the great grain growing States of the West, and that high prices are likely to continue for all kinds of food for our coming year. Let every farmer, therefore, plant all the available acres, with an assured certainty of receiving good prices for every surplus product he may not offer to themselves and their own citizens to do so, but it is their duty to the community to give the largest possible amount of production this year, in view of the acknowledged deficiency. Whatever surplus may be raised over and above the wants of our own country, will be called for in Europe at remunerating prices.

It is stated that the Penobscot and Kennebec Railroad cannot be completed by the 4th of July so that the proposition of the city government to unite the celebration of that anniversary, with a celebration at the opening of the road, is impracticable. We suppose the truth could be completed by that time, but it would not be properly gravelled up so as to have the road "opened."

THE PENOBSCOT, Mattawamkeag and Grand Lake City on Saturday commissioned to lay out the work for the immediate construction of observations on the Penobscot (shore route) railroad. We understand that the contractor for the completion of the road has been taken by Hon. John M. Wood, of Portland.—Mercury.

ACCIDENT AT HIGH HEAD.—On Saturday last, Patrick Garvin, in the employ of the R. R. Company, was severely injured by a bank of earth falling upon him. His pelvis was fractured and he received such severe internal injuries as to leave him in a very critical situation. Dr. Field is in attendance.

SAFE BOATSMEN.—The time of the ship Bonaparte on her recent trip from New Orleans to Liverpool was twenty-three and a half days, instead of twenty-seven as heretofore stated.—This is said to be the quickest passage on record.

The largest steamboat yet afloat is said to be the "Metropolis," just launched at Greenpoint near New York, and intended to run on the Fall River route in the Sound, in connection with the Bay State and the Empire State. She is 320 feet in length and 44 feet beam. The cylinder of her engine is 120 inches diameter, and 12 feet stroke.

Among Kindred Woods. The Traveller states that a woman in South Braintree having been robbed one morning, recently, of her money, and compelled him to pass of entertainment to rise out of bed, dress himself, find the breastpin, accompany her home, and deposit it on her dressing-table which he had taken it. He was then suffered to depart.

Rare sport, this trout fishing. Two expert disciples of Izaak Walton left Lexington on Monday for a trout excursion up the Shenandoah, a beautiful trout stream. After six hours incessant application, one gentleman was fortunate enough to secure a mud turtle and a garter snake, and the other a couple of toads each of them big enough to swallow a moderate sized angle worm. Rare sport.—Boston Times.

A man with an enormous mouth, called on a dentist to get a tooth drawn. After he dentist had prepared the instruments and was about to commence operations, the man began to strain and stretch his mouth till he opened it to a most frightful extent. "Now," said the dentist "don't trouble yourself to open your mouth any wider, for I am used to pulling on the outside to draw your teeth."

The following Notice, delivered at Rome Georgia, in the case of Abe Johnson vs Thomas Cameron, it sets that Philadelphia does not monopolize all the intelligent lawyers in the United States. "We the gury the jon and swarne aginst tom kamprin mowt pa the gowning the ful amount of 29 fifty cents that the plaintiff pay over the won quart of sher kee the benefit o the jury and lawyer will be mailed out."

Nothing gives a youthful friend of ours more decidedly swallowed a cod bulk, his friends were very much alarmed, and his father that no means might be spared to save his darling boy's life, sent in post haste, for a surgeon of skill, directing the messenger to tell him the circumstances, and urge his coming without delay.

The doctor was found—heard the dismal tale, and with as much unconcern as he would manifest in a case of common headache, sat down and wrote the following laconic o

"Sar—don't a arm yourself. If after three weeks the bullet is not removed, give the boy a charge of powder Yours, one

"P. S.—Don't run the boy anybody."

Our friend's surgeon having so much confidence in the skill and experience of the doctor, obeys the directions.—Ex exchange.

SPARE DIMES.—The Philistine authenticates language ascribed to the eldest of Capt McKeever, whose ship was wrecked at the Chincha Islands some time since, and himself and a boy wounded a soldier who ran on board to collect a fare for firing a gun at the sailor. The reward was $27,000 (independent of the wreck, $15,000 for the wounding and imprisonment of the captain, and $5,000 for the injury sustained by the boy.

The Peruvian Minister showing a disposition to vacillate and procrastinate the payment, Mr Marcoleta told him he was pay according, to agreement, or at least should be collected at the point of the cannon.

LECTURE.—Mrs. Johnson will delivery a free lecture introductory to her second course of extensive Physiology, in the City Hall, on Thursday next at 3 P. M. Mrs J. has delivered a very successful and satisfactory course of lectures to many of the young ladies of the High School, and others. Her second course we have no doubt will be largely attended. See her advertisement which contains some high testimonials of her ability.

MAY DAY.—The indications last evening were not favorable for a pleasant "a comfortable May Morning for the young people, although many were preparing to take advantage of a pleasant spell, if such should be vouchsafed. In our latitude and climate, the first of June rather than the first of May, should be selected as the day on which to welcome the advent of summer.

A severe rain storm set in last evening.

PORTRAIT AND LANDSCAPE PAINTING.—We would call attention to the card of our neighbor, R. G. Norse, who has taken a long room in Exchange Block, and is prepared to give lessons in Oil painting, and Pencil and Crayon Drawing.—Mr Norse is an artist of much talent, and we hope will receive the patronage he deserves.

STEREOSCOPES are a drug at the New York exchange-house, at four shillings (70 cents) a piece.

SERIOUS.—THE COST OF AN ASSAULT.—From a letter of F. Guillardet, to the Courier des Etats Unis

"General Canrobert, in a letter that appears in the Moniteur, gives an account of various private engagements. Those are not the ones I argue the great events soon to be enacted there. What is to be the result? Will Sebastopol fall into our hands, or will the rest of our assault? In the present opinion of officers have been assured that a letter has been received from Gen. Bosquet—the bravest of the brave; in it he expresses the wish that peace may occur soon enough to spare the nation a fearful but terrible enterprise; because Sebastopol is no longer a town, it is a camp, fortified as never position was before. Redoubts are behind redoubts, batteries behind batteries, ramparts, squares, bastions, and towers, are all armed and bristle with a fearful array of guns! The assailants will be at a point in Crimea, and forced to stand. It will cost twenty thousand men; and after all may be succeed? For the rest are whose things equality beyond human valor and human strength!"

THE WAR PRICE IN RUSSIA.—Private letters from St. Petersburg received by important mercantile houses, state confidently that the state of war entry has completely got the upper hand, and that Alexander's throne would not be worth a week's purchase, if he were to attempt to thwart the national current of feeling. The rich nobles, who's their hearts long for peace, and will be the greatest sufferers by the war, are even willed to swell the popular cry. They offer large contributions, in the hope of averting a sweeping ad valorem property tax and ensuing confiscation.

STEAMER HOUSTON.—This favorite outside steamer comes upon the route this spring as good as new, having undergone the most perfect repairs, and had a new boiler put in. Capt. E. B. Sayford, every inch a sailor, is in command, Messrs Fendrick and Alden the efficient and gentlemanly clerks, are in their place. The other officers are the same as last year. The Houston has the reputation of being one of the best sea-boats that ever cut water east of Cape Cod. She has been remarkably fortunate, never having met with any accident. She will undoubtedly continue to merit and receive the past share of popular patronage.—Journal.

PROFESSOR OLIN MEAD.—The excellent safe-going propel or steamer to perform a part of the travelling accommodations between this city and Boston. She has made her trips with great regularity as we learn, and has been on the route, and a short in excellent freighting business. She has good accommodations for a limited number of passengers. Capt. Winchenbach is much esteemed as a sailor and gentleman by all who make his acquaintance.—Journal.

Man and His Destiny.

AN UNPRETENDING POEM.

BY CHARLES LOWELL.

Mr. Lowell is a lawyer—or "Sergeant at Law," in old English parlance—well known to our citizens. From what he says of his age and infirmities, we should judge that he is between sixty and seventy years old, though from the freshness of his countenance and his great activity, one would not take him to be more than fifty-five. We know of no one to whom Chaucer's description is more apropos than to him

"Another sir lamp a man as he there was,
And yet he seemed busier than he was
In termes hadde cases and domes alle,
That from the time of King William falle,
Thereto he coulde endite, and make a thing,
Thee coulde no man pynche at his writyng."

No man can "pynche," or find a flaw—a real flaw—in the writing of this our Sergeant of Lawe. Whenever he plays himself out" in prose or verse, his energy and discrimination are as apparent in every line, that not one of all who have attempted it—if there have been any such—has yet succeeded in impairing its effect. He follows closely the advice of quaint old George Herbert:

"Do all things like a man, not meanly."

And in this spirit, evidently he has entered the field as a poet.

Although his poem, the title of which heads this notice, is for "private circulation, and is not in print," as he says in his modest introductory remarks, "mainly to save writing, and multiply copies for convenient transmission to the numerous personal friends of the author," yet its merits are such, that he will excuse us, we think for introducing his unpretending production to the public.

It is in two parts, "embracing Education, Temperance, Know Nothingism, Slavery, The Public Press, The Persecutions and Oppressions that endanger and disgrace the Country, concluding with the Patriot's Prayer for God's Protection to this Nation." It consists of 256 lines, and each topic receives its share of attention. The author expressly disclaims "perfection in number and versification," therefore no critic has a right to lay his ruthless hand upon him in these particulars. The first sentiment that prevails throughout the poem is beyond criticism.—Ex exchange.

It opens with the starting question—

"What is man?"

The whole curiosity of the reader is set on tiptoe in a instance, in the very verse couplet. If he should stop to answer the question, the vast amount of reflection which its solution involves would keep him at the bell pull longer than he would have patience to stay. He must, therefore, content himself, if he is in haste to get on medias res, with the simple and expressive answer of Richard the Shrubless:

"Man is a worm."

Having thus got over this scantle, the reader next meets with sundry other important propositions.

"Why made he thus made,
Tossed and sleeps, to work and wade?
Why is he made so strong, so frail
To do or live, or should to fail?"

The best poetry is full not only of beauty but of thought. And where the poet has the faculty, by beautiful language, of drawing his reader inevitably into the contemplation of the grand or themes, he is entitled to be read. A writer of high authority, says of the Book of Job, that "in all antiquity there is not a piece of poetry more copious, more lofty, more magnificent, more diversified, more adorned, more affecting." The author of this book puts into the mouth of one of the characters the inquiry—

"What is man that he should be clean?"

An inquiry involving similar thought to the inquiries propounded by Mr Lowell. It may be objected to these inquiries, that they lack originality. To this we answer, that originality is not always indispensable to greatness—Washington was a great man. The above inquiry from Job was not probably original with the author, yet the poem is great, notwithstanding.

In one respect Lowell is greater than Byron. The latter, instead of provoking inquiry and setting our wits at work, does no more than enunciate the fact,

"That man Made to mourn,"

But Lowell starts our thoughts on a mission through this groaning world to ascertain why man is

"So doomed to wail?"

He has no passive qualities, all is vigorous action with him, therefore he is greater than Byron, inasmuch as an active man is greater than a passive one.

Before concluding the first part of the poem, the reader finds that the author has saved him a deal of trouble that he might possibly be inclined to put himself at to answer his opening question "What is man?" thus:

"The thought will return—What is man,
Who fill such place in God's great plan?
He is a worm, called and do well,
A sense used in scant by mankind."

A more satisfactory answer could not be given.

The other statements and practical suggestions contained in Part I. of this valuable poem, impress the reader with the eminently discriminating character of the author's mind. Take the following:

"There was a time when age and worth
Claims sacred reverence from our youth,
But now alas! these rule the roast,
And of their follies idols boast.

If any one must term needs,
Or in a pet rest at no rule,
The older more than he do lie,
At our brave youth will no outrun."

How true! "There was a time" when the youth touched his hat to the man on meeting him. Now, if the hat is touched, it is the man who touches it, not the boy; that is a business beneath boys! If Mr. Lowell will drub those youngsters into being somewhat respectful, he will accomplish a very good thing.

The author has a true eye for the beautiful. He says

"It is a pleasant thing to see
A modest youth in childish glee,
A troop of pretty, cheerful girls
With full bright eyes, and modest curls.
But better sure, if with such charms,
A lovely babe in his fond arms,
A sad quiet grace in every look,
Presses the spirit's nobler book."

It is a remark of a friend of ours, that a beautiful maiden and a beautiful infant are the two most beautiful objects in the world. Mr. Lowell thinks, doubtless, the two in conjunction, make the one most beautiful object. The closely taken of course should be borrowed.

Mr. Lowell sums up Know-Nothingism quite curtly. He shows his great independence in daring to attack it as he does in that nest-bed of "the order," Ellsworth. An occasion all that like this must, sooner or later, bring it into utter contempt:

"Lately has risen in this land,
A new and secret party band,
With strange things passed within their booths,
But O, their Oaths! their secret Oaths!

"The plain to every thoughtful mind
That such attempt, the aim to bind,
Is clearly in derogation,
Of right, law, and constitution."

We are informed, that Mr. Lowell, in consequence of his energy, discrimination and great independence, has suffered much heretofore in his "profession" by "oppressions" and "persecutions" from a squad of "sanctorum rowdies," who have sometimes been made to writhe under the lash of his nature, and it is to these that he addresses defiance in the following lines:

"Plan in this hunted kind of race,
With all its democratic graces,
Persecutions and dire oppressions
Are spending like to our professions!"

We cannot notice his treatment of all the subjects of this poem. Sufficient, that there is a number of—we do not mean monotony—of treatment of them all. There is only one passage that seems to be ambiguous. It is in the Patriot's prayer:

"While here below, and Thou on high,
To Thee we breathe the patriot sigh,
That Thou in mercy will preserve,
This people from what we deserve."

We are not certain whether this is intended as a prayer for a blessing or a curse. "We," in the connection, of course means "I." "I deserve," "I deserve." Some envious people may be disposed to accuse the author of imagining that he is deserving of great blessings hereafter, and is praying that his persecutors may be prevented from enjoying similar blessings. But we are certain no such opinion in his humility, he magnanimously prays that those aristocratic rowdies may be preserved from what he deserves. Like a true Christian, he feels himself a sinner, and deserving of punishment as such, and, like a true Christian, he prays for his enemies. A spirit like this should immortalize its possessor. His enemies may still urge against him the motives that controlled the devotional exercises of one of the heroes of his contemporary and namesake, the new Professor of Modern Languages in Harvard University:

"I do believe in special ways
O' prayin' an' convartin',
The Apostle Paul used to say
Jest himself, his ear skrim."

But we believe he is not influenced by no such motives. He is one of Nature's nobles, and all he does as a poet, philosopher and philanthropist, he does only for the good and good-will of his fellow men.

As Mr Lowell has happily begun a poetical career, we trust he may as happily end it.

DE QUINCEY.

P. S. Mr. Lowell has a large professional practice, and, we understand, would take a partner. D. Q.

A TOTAL WRECK.—On the 1st of January, 1854, a gentleman doing business in this city was worth, with what he had invested in business, $100,000. At the same time he was blessed with a lovely and intelligent wife, beautiful and blooming children. He was surrounded by friends who esteemed and respected him. His business was lucrative, and promised to continue so. Indeed his position as well as his prospects were, seemingly, all that he could desire to render his happiness perfect. How complete the wreck which the year closed upon us. The first misfortune was the transhipment of merchandize to the amount of $18,000 to a distant market, which, while on the sea, was totally destroyed. The next were two successive railroads, by means of which $50,000 were lost. After this, the only remnant of his large investments of real estate, was a large amount of the most unsalable description, was a tract of land somewhere in Illinois. They embarked, on their return, with $35,000 in goods, but ere the luckless Arctic, and all shared the fate. In settling up his affairs his real estate was sold under the hammer, at a sacrifice of $ 9,000, making the aggregate loss to his property during the year $118,000. $8000 more than his assets. His friends were obliged to make good the deficiency. Whatever destruction more complete? Pa her, mother, children, fortune, all gone—swept from the face of the earth—nothing left to show that they ever existed. We doubt whether among the many wrecks which the past year has witnessed, there has been one causing them more melancholy than this.—N. Y. Courier & Enquirer.

[From the Boston Courier.]

Incurable Suicide of a Well Known Citizen of Charlestown.

Mr. Joseph Trout, of Charlestown, well known in this city as a man of business, largely engaged for many years in cotton manufacturing, has suddenly and mysteriously disappeared, under circumstances which awaken the most painful apprehensions. On Monday of last week, he left home for New York. He came to Norwich by way of Plainfield, leaving his daughter at the latter place, and making an appointment to meet her there on the following Wednesday. Upon his arrival in Norwich he went among other places to the Probate Office, for the transaction of certain business touching the estate of his deceased father—he being the administrator on said estate.

The business referred to was a source of great perplexity and mortification to him owing to pecuniary embarrassments which had compelled him to make an assignment of all his property to creditors. While at the Probate Office, Mr. Trout gave expression to his feelings in very strong language. Alluding to the sickness and finally apprehended death of his father-in-law, Amos Winter, Esq., of Plainfield, whose decease occurred on the 17th inst., he remarked to Judge Ripley that "he wished he was in his father-in-law's place."

In this state of mind he left Norwich for New York on the evening of that day—spent Tuesday in New York, made a purchase of flax for his mill (he had within a year or two embarked in the fax cotton manufacture) and took the boat on Tuesday evening for Norwich.

During the passage from New York he was seen and conversed with by various Norwich gentlemen who happened to be on board; but none of them observed anything unusual in his manner or conversation.

He left the cabin and sat sitting in the upper saloon somewhere from 1 to 12 o'clock, when the boat was within a few miles of New London.

Since then no trace of him has been discovered, and the painful probability is, that he sleeps his last sleep in the waters of Long Island Sound, or in the River Thames.—Norwich (Ct.) Courier, April, 26.

Lectures to Ladies.

Mrs M. A. W. JOHNSON will give a Free Lecture, introductory to her Second Course on Physiology and the laws of Nature, to the ladies of Bangor, in the City Hall, THURSDAY, May 3d, at 3 o'clock P. M.

☞ Tickets to the Course $1,00—Single Lecture 25 cents. Tickets can be obtained at the close of the Free Lecture.

Mrs Johnson is furnished with a fine French Apparatus, for the purpose of illustrations; and also with ample testimonials as to character and qualifications; among which is the following Letter from Hon. Horace Greeley.

TO ALL WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

New York, Oct 17th, 1851.

Mrs. Mary Ann W. Johnson proposes to lecture to women on Anatomy and Physiology, with special reference to their peculiar constitutions, duties and responsibilities arising from the laws of their own being. I trust the subject can have no compromise.

I am to answer Mrs. Johnson for the last ten years; during which period, (first in Boston, having been for a great share of those years employed on the Tribune as assistant editor,) she has, I believe, Mrs. Johnson has commended herself to those around her as a woman of unblemished character, of superior abilities, and a spirit of earnest philanthropy and fearless investigation.

I emphatically assure you that she is qualified by ample study and a worthy purpose for the distinguished work she undertakes, and I ask your good offices in favor of her mission. Yours, HORACE GREELEY.

Proof of the great authority of DR. WISTAR'S BALSAM of wild cherry, is found in the fact that more of it is sold than of all other kinds put together.

Oxford, New Haven Co., Conn. Jan. 1st, 1855.

Dear Sir—Having witnessed the effects of WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY, in the case of one of my neighbors, who has been for several years seriously afflicted with the phthisic, general pulmonary weakness, although not in the last stage, etc., I have been induced to procure for some of the most fine. My neighbor returned to me very much relieved, and had a violent attack of bleeding at the lungs, and despaired of existing. He took a bottle of the Wild Cherry, which has produced most perfect effects. All the medicine he has used since, and he is now attending to the above-named lately, you will oblige the afflicted, and also Yours, &c. HENRY BUNNAM.

MORRISON'S

New Shingle Machine,

NOW on Exhibition near Washburn's Turning Shop, No. 117 Broad street, up stairs, opposite John Buckman Lumber Yard, from 9 to 12 A.M. and from 2 to 4 P.M.

The most new, novel, and at the same time, probably the most useful that we have lately seen, is Morrison's new Shingle Machine. Its construction is simple, its work easy and good. It is a fast worker, and that will recommend it to all machines, who, like other men are desirous of going beyond the times.—[Kennebec Tribune.]

NOTICE.

THE undersigned, having been appointed a Committee at a meeting of the log owners in Bangor and vicinity, to take prompt and stringent measures to prevent the sawing of stray logs at the various mills on the Penobscot river, hereby give notice that, in order to collect and object, they have appointed Aaron H. Bassett Superintending Agent, with full power to appoint as many subagents as may be deemed necessary to take every log in said pond from Oldtown Falls to Rockpost, and keep a vigilant watch and [illegible] any stray logs are sawed, and to [illegible] report the same, forthwith, stating the mark or marks thereof, and by whom sawed.

The undersigned give further notice, that, pursuant to the above, they will prosecute, to final judgment, any and all cases reported to them, of logs sawed by any person or persons not belonging to them, or without the authority of the owner thereof.

In order to prevent any mistake, we recommend that each and every occedent of mill or mills, should post up, in some conspicuous place in the mill, a list of all the marks of logs owned by him, as we [illegible] the mark or marks of all logs which by the authority of the owner or owners thereof he has the right to saw.

Extract from chapter 57 of the Revised Statutes

SECTION 1. If any person shall take, carry away, or otherwise convert to his own use, without the consent of the owners, any log suitable to be sawed into boards, clapboards, shingles, joist, or other lumber, or any part or upon the property of another, whether the owner thereof be known or unknown, lying and being in any river, pond, bay, stream or inlet, on or near the bank or shore thereof, within this State, he shall forfeit, for each and every such log, must or spar, twenty Dollars, to be recovered on complaint before any justice of the peace of the county where the offence shall be committed, one half to the use of the State, and the other half to the use of the complainant, provided that such person shall not, for the same offence, have been convicted and sentenced under the provisions of the following section

SECTION 2. If any person shall fraudulently and knowingly take and convert to his own use, either by himself or by [illegible] in his employment, any such log, mast or spar, lying or being, as described in the preceding section, for the purpose of being so used or disposed of by manufacture, he shall be deemed guilty of larceny, and upon [illegible] for that offence, as provided in chapter one [illegible] and fifty-six, provided he shall not have been convicted and sentenced under the preceding section

SECTION 3. If any person shall cut out, alter or destroy any mark made on any such log, mast or spar, lying or being as described in the first section, without the consent of the owner thereof, and with the intent to claim it as same, he shall be liable to the penalty provided in the first section, to be recovered in the same manner, and to the same use.

SECTION 4. Every person guilty of either of the offences described in the preceding sections, shall, whether convicted in a criminal prosecution therefor, or not, be liable to pay the owner of any such log, mast or spar, respecting which the offence was committed, double the value of the same to be recovered in an action of tort.

SECTION 5. In any prosecution, under the preceding sections, of such log, mast or spar, shall be found in the possession of the defendant, with the marks cut out or altered, or carefully sawed or manufactured into lumber of any kind, or part or device, not being his own property, it shall be considered as presumptive evidence of his guilt; and the burden of the proof shall be upon him to discharge himself.

SECTION 6. The owner of any such log, mast or spar, may, at any time, by himself, or his agent, enter, in a peaceable manner, upon any mill or mill boom, lumber yard or other premises, in search of any such logs, mast or spars, which he may have lost, and any person who shall wilfully prevent or obstruct such search, shall forfeit, for each offence, not less than ten, nor more than fifty dollars—to be recovered in an action of debt, to the use of the person by whom, or on whose account, such entry was allowed.

Extract from chapter 146 of the Revised Statutes.

SECTION 5. Every person who shall commit larceny by stealing from the person of another, shall be punished by imprisonment in the State prison, not more than ten years, or by fine, not exceeding five hundred dollars and by imprisonment in the county jail, not exceeding one year.

Also we have given a true extract from the laws appertaining to the subject matter of sawing of any logs, or in other words, the manufacturing of any log or logs, by any person or persons, not owning the same.

We have done this, for the purpose of the guidance and enlightening of all parties who have been constantly in the habit of thus appropriating the property of others to their own use.

We keep only a said text in full, in case of a violation of said laws, we shall promptly prosecute to the utmost extent of the same.

Saws—Saws!

ROWLAND'S German and Cast Steel MILL and GANG SAWS, and Welch & Griffith's CIRCULAR SAWS, of every description, for sale by T. JENNESS apr21 2w No. 12 West Market Square.

New King and Rocking Company,

(MANUFACTURERS OF)

WARREN'S IMPROVED

Fire and Water Proof Composition Roofs,

Office——7 Liberty Square, Boston.

THIS Company would respectfully solicit the attention of Builders, Architects, Manufacturers, and the Public, to their much approved system of Roofing, which has been very generally adopted in the cities of Buffalo, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis, and within the past year in Boston, as a trial roof, where it has given entire satisfaction. It is rapidly superseding the use of all other kinds of roof, and is confidently offered to the Public as a cycle of Roofing unobjectionable in every respect whatever.

The materials employed are none of them subject to contraction or rust, like the metals, nor will the prepared and contract with the changes of temperature, like tin and iron, nor shrink in dry weather, and swell in damp, like shingles, and other wood coverings

It contracts in a greater degree than any other Fire Proof Roof now in use, the valuable recommendations of cheapness, durability, and security, against both Fire & Water.

Wood Decks may be laid in combination of not more than one inch to the foot, leaving it in practicable dimension for [illegible] purposes, and as all parts are advantageous in adjoining buildings in the event of fire.

They have attained at a much less price than any other Fire Proof Roof. The amount of material saved, and which would be used (by the old method), in raising the walls and framing rafters Roof shall further recommend the cost of the building.

Another advantage gained, is the securing of rooms in the upper story, of the same dimensions and quite as commodious, as those in the lower part of the building. The expense of a three Story Building, with this improvement, not being greater than that of a building of two stories with the old fashioned roof. There is a further saving in the cost of gutters.

These roofs are not affected by the jar of machinery—like those of Tin or Slate.

The Composition is so prepared that it is not affected by the extremes of heat or cold.

In case of injury from any cause whatever, no roof is so easily or quickly repaired
